Omnipulse Entertainment's Last Flight Of The Champion comes to AFM

Houston, Texas

10/12/2012

Omnipulse Entertainment will be at the American Film Market (AFM) offering a full slate of four to five animated Motion Pictures. The flag of which is Last Flight of the Champion. LFOTC is a completed project intended to kick off Omnipulse's slate of family friendly animated films. Along with Last Flight of the Champion, Omnipulse will also be offering, several other projects; including "Nanopals: Battle for the Microverse", "Magic Toychest" and "Amethysta".

The Houston Based Animation Studio, Omnipulse, is making its' first ever appearance at this year's AFM. Although Omnipulse has been a regular at NATPE in the past, AFM offers Omnipulse a market for its' film projects not available anywhere else.

Last Flight of the Champion is the story of a young Turtelian, Neddy Nerfhopper, who just wants to do his part in stopping the evil General Disdain. When Neddy goes to enlist; however, he discovers that in some peoples eyes he is just too small to be of use and he is rejected. Neddy along with two other 4F's, Hopper and Owen, set out to form their own army, with titles and ranks and everything. They form their army from others like themselves.

Searching for a base Neddy discovers a 1,000 year old Cosmic Marshall Ship, The Champion, whose AI controller is still alive. With The Champion our heroes set out to confront Disdain only to find that others need their help first.

About Omnipulse

Omnipulse Entertainment has according to Thomas Douglas, co-founder of Omnipulse "a special asset" in friend and co-founder E. Thomas Ewing. It is E. Thomas' ideas, which form the base for Omnipulse's film projects. Mr. Ewing takes his concept and often turns to his brother, Jeremy Ewing, his writing partner, and together they; says Producer, Felipe Porres, "... create a synergy that makes for truly entertaining often funny scripts.

Following the writing process Mr. Ewing puts on his other hat as Director to move from concept through finished production. Check out The Champion and Omnipulse.

See you at AFM 2012
