Joseph James Films is attending the American Film Market exhibiting two feature films entitled The Freemason and Templar Nation; the company is also aiding independent filmmakers with distribution.

Santa Monica, CA (November 6, 2013) - Joseph James Films is attending the American Film Market in Santa Monica, California exhibiting two feature films entitled The Freemason (starring Sean Astin, Randy Wayne, and Alex McKenna) and Templar Nation (starring Erik Estrada, Richard Dutcher and Joseph James). The Freemason was filmed earlier this year in Utah and has been described as a thoughtful suspense thriller- part Sherlock, part Hitchcock, which creates a gripping mystery for the viewer to solve. The other movie, Templar Nation, was released domestically July 23, 2013 and is available throughout America in Block Busters and other major retail outlets either in store or online (Barnes and Noble, Best Buy, Target, Wal-Mart, etc.) to rent or purchase. Templar Nation is the story of an Archeologist and a few of his students who are thrown into an ancient blood- feud, they must navigate through a formerly hidden realm; following the ancient path of the Knight's Templar. Joseph James Films will be negotiating the sale of Templar Nation's international rights.

The owner of Joseph James Films is also reaching out to independent filmmakers while at the American Film Market who have "finished" movies that are seeking distribution. With three finished feature films, Joseph James has an understanding of the film making process from start to end and understands the process by which to get movies into retail outlets. Joseph James is accepting meetings as time allows while in attendance at AFM November 6th – 13th. Appointments can be set by emailing the company at josephjamesfilms@gmail.com.
